The Actuaries

Starting as an actuary – destination: unknown

Professional life is changing. job roles are becoming less clearly defined and undergoing a significant transformation. This also affects classic areas of work such as the actuarial profession. On the one hand, actuaries have to meet new (technical) requirements, on the other hand, they can now choose their career path much more independently with new practice areas and roles available to them.
This newsletter issue focuses on actuarial career paths. We spoke to a traditionally educated actuary now working in an unusual environment, actupool Competence Partner and consulting firm JCW talks about the skillset of a modern actuary and last but not least we take a closer look at the power of passion and why it is crucial for your own career path in traditional and in wider fields.
