Number of the Month

85%

According to Wellhub's global report "Work-Life Wellness 2025", 85% of workers believe their employer has a responsibility to help them tend to their wellbeing. And 83% of employees would even consider leaving a company that does not focus on employee wellbeing. However, another result of the study is particularly thought-provoking from an actuarial point of view: 68% of employees say their financial situation prevents them from investing in their overall wellbeing.
